Photo : AP The Book Market in Avignon, France, will be held on Oct. 6 for the 400th time. An estimated 5,000 publishers and 30,000 writers from around the world will take part in the event, which will also be celebrating the 20th anniversary of the Gabriela Mistral International Prize for literature. The Book Market is a regular event, held in France every year, offering a "weekly menu" of 12 debates on the importance of literature and culture. As reported in the Guardian, the event benefits several local organisations and associations, including a library in a Carpentras school that has experienced a lot of vandalism and theft by children in recent years. It is the first time the event is being held in Avignon, France's second city, and this will be its 400th edition. "The Book Market is a place of encounters, encounters between publishers and readers," the organisation behind the event told the Guardian. "It is a place that allows readers to share their impressions and those of the books they have read. It is a place where new and old friends meet." Participants will read the winners of the previous weeks' best seller and give their thoughts on them. One participant, also the editor-in-chief of a literary magazine, told the New York Times that this is the first time he has read hundreds of novels. ♦
