I'm passing in an index and then an int value to be added at that index. When a new index is passed in I want to make sure that the index value I'm currently using is the max index value that will be used in the function. At the end of the function, the array should have added all int values starting at the end of the array and going to the max index value. def create_array(index, item): global arr arr.append(item) #I want to make sure that index is the max index value that will #be used in the function if index == maxindex: add_to_maxindex() After I've received the values from the device I want to take those values and add them to the end of the array at the max index value. The only trouble is I'm not sure how to make sure that index is the max index that will be used. A: the function create_array would be better as def create_array(index, item, maxindex): global arr arr.append(item

You are soon going to discover a tool that can help you on one of the main concerns you have if you have an iPhone or iPad: backup your iPhone. This is because you will discover that the application has many interesting features. Features : This application helps you analyze the complete backup of your iPhone without any complex installation procedures. To access the backups, you only need to launch the application on your computer. It will automatically detect all the backups that are present on your iPhone. You will be able to access the entire contents of the backup as you want it. The best feature is that you will be able to choose exactly which data you want to be exported: WhatsApp and Viber chats, voice memos, photos and messages, contacts, call logs, notes, reminders or calendar entries. The next important thing to consider is that all the data is already sorted by date, time and location. What you will be able to do with this data is to extract it on your computer and for example use it to extract the data in order to change them on your iPhone. If you don't use all the data that is stored in this backup, you will be given the possibility to eliminate the data that you do not need. If you don't know how to extract it, this application will teach you how. The instructions are easy to follow and even a non-techy person will have no problem installing this application. What you will discover is that this application will help you for everything you need to do with your iPhone backups. iSight Video is a tool that will allow you to reduce the size of your video file to save battery life. As you know, it is quite common to use your iPhone as a portable video camera, making recordings on the go. Once the recording is done, you have to save it to your computer. By using this application, you will be able to reduce the size of the video file, reducing battery usage. With iSight Video, you will be able to: • Export short videos in MP4 format. • Reduce the size of the video to save battery life. • Reduce the size of the video by clipping unwanted parts (such as parts with low quality). • Slice video files into shorter segments. You can then download or send individual segments. • Share videos among different devices by exporting a video file as a video file or a movie file. • Cut video file on a specific moment in 09e8f5149f

One of the best ways to make sure your mobile data is safe is to create frequent backups on your computer. If your current device is an iOS one, you can try Gihosoft iManager to explore the files in these backups. Straightforward interface When launching this app, it automatically analyzes your PC and detects all the backups you have previously taken using iTunes. You can find out information such as the time and date when the backup was created, as well as numerous details about the device. More specifically, you can easily view the device name, product type, serial number, iOS version and device UUID. At this point, Gihosoft iManager can export the backup to a ZIP archive, access the backup location or copy it to a new folder. If you are an investigator or forensics analyst, you can also export the raw data. Choose the backup data you want to extract If you are only interested in certain file types, you can select specifically the data you need: photos, voice memos, messages, contacts, call logs, voicemails, Safari bookmarks, notes, reminders, or calendar entries. WhatsApp and Viber conversations can also be extracted. Regardless of the data you need, you get the possibility to preview it before exporting it to your PC. However, depending on the file type, the export options are different: the images retain the format from the iOS device, whereas the messages, WhatsApp and Viber chats can be exported to PDF, TXT, CSV or as attachments. Similarly, you can export your contact data to TXT, CSV or vCard. What is the IDM Manager? IDM Manager is a professional, easy to use file manager. It is designed for file management on Windows OS.
