The present invention relates to a new and distinct cultivar of Angelonia plant botanically known as Angelonia hybrida and hereinafter referred to by the cultivar name 'Balmachenspara'. The new cultivar originated in a controlled breeding program in Elburn, Ill. during February 2007. The objective of the breeding program was the development of Angelonia cultivars with unique flower coloration and continuous flowering, upright plant habit, and a moderately vigorous, mounded-trailing growth habit. The new Angelonia cultivar is the result of cross-pollination. The female (seed) parent of the new cultivar is the proprietary Angelonia hybrida breeding selection designated 44-3-1, not patented, characterized by its dark red-colored flowers, medium green-colored foliage, and semi-upright growth habit. The male (pollen) parent of the new cultivar is the proprietary Angelonia hybrida breeding selection designated 44-3-3, not patented, characterized by its dark red-colored flowers, medium green-colored foliage, and upright growth habit. The new cultivar was discovered and selected as a single flowering plant within the progeny of the above stated cross-pollination during May 2009 in a controlled environment in Elburn, Ill. Asexual reproduction of the new cultivar by terminal stem cuttings since May 2009 in
