They are the two completely different products that share the same name. I'm not trying to be mean, because I do think that Apple's consumer products are cool and well-built. I just didn't realize that these two products were the same until the email came in. I do want to point out that I'm assuming that you bought a MacMini and not a mini Server because the MacMini is 1.6 times the price of a mini server and the mini server is 1.3 times the price of the Macmini (2.2k versus 2.6k). ~~~ NickPollard Stripe doesn't get that. ~~~ ed0c7 Went through MacMini -> mini Mac -> server at the end of the beta, it doesn't actually relate which mac's are which. Based on 4 comments here (that I've seen) I can only hope not too many people are going with this, and if so, I'll have to explain more. EDIT: This is the email I was sent: Got a little discount?
