What's New in the?

One of my primary goals was to have the entire project easy to config and use. So I have opted to make this an "entirely user configurable", "all-in-one" solution. What this means is that you can start with a basic program that can do all that it needs to do, and then you can expand it by adding as many filters as you want. The software is coded completely in C#, XNA, .Net Framework 4.0 and implements a custom object model. The architecture of the software is also designed to be as intuitive as possible, meaning the overall workflow is straightforward, fast and easy to understand. When using this software, you simply specify the scan type of each page you want to download. You can even specify the "recency" of pages you want to download, meaning that you can specify your "recent pages" as a set of IP addresses or as a folder/directory name, etc. When each page is downloaded, the software will automatically begin to trim the file. This improves network traffic by reducing the number of total bytes downloaded to a manageable number of bytes. Note that this software will not play "pasted" files, it will download them and then play them, but if you are planning on using another software to play pasted files, you will need to have a way of generating those files, or you will need to use a custom file format. The actual downloading process can be as complicated or as simple as you want. The software supports direct download to the hard drive or directly to a network share, but if you prefer to use a web server, you can download files to a folder by setting the "download location" directly in the object model. If you don't want the software to play files that you have already downloaded, you can easily configure which files are ignored by setting an "ignore location" and/or "ignore filename" location in the object model. Note that the program will first attempt to play downloaded files if you're having trouble in playing files you've already downloaded, but if you want to have even more control, you can specify those locations. The software is very easy to expand, not only can you expand the entire project with multiple pages, file types, etc. but you can also add as many filters as you want to build a custom search engine. When configuring the filter, you specify a list of IP addresses or a directory name that you would like to exclude from being scanned.
