This formula is VLOOKUP a new column based on the value in another one. The problem I have, is that VLOOKUP is not recognizing (and adding to the sheet formula) the if function. I found a way to add the if function but only the equals operator I need an IF function like in this example where I need to check if the data is not empty. =IF(LEN(Z2)=0,Z2,VLOOKUP(Z2,$Z$2:$O$21,2,FALSE)) I tried to convert this formula to vba but it didn't work. Here is my code: Sub add_team() Dim lngLastRow As Long Dim ws As Worksheet Dim rngDict As Range, rngNew As Range Dim lngStartRow As Long Dim lngRow As Long Dim lngEndRow As Long Dim lngEndRow2 As Long On Error Resume Next Application.DisplayAlerts = False Set ws = ThisWorkbook.Worksheets("Opportunity Control") ws.Range("E25").Value = "#VALUE!" ws.Range("F25").Value = "

Please help to indicate where the problem is. Thank you! A: I'm going to make a guess: when you say you're getting an exception at this line of code, are you actually reaching into the class? Try this instead deck = new Deck(); Have you tried to try to load the file again? I am not sure of the actual name of your file, but I would suspect that the problem is that your file is not loaded properly or that you are using a different method to load it. Effects of treatment with high doses of microvascular flow maturation therapy on endothelial function in patients with chronic stroke: a randomized controlled trial. The PANT (microcirculation blood flow therapy) study was a randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled trial to evaluate the effect of microcirculation blood flow therapy on endothelial function. The aim was to test whether the vasomotor properties of peripheral blood vessels, such as peripheral arterial tonometry and laser Doppler, are improved after intensive exercise-based intervention compared with treatment with inert placebo in stroke survivors. Sixty-three patients with chronic ischemic stroke were randomized to one of two treatment groups: (i) a microcirculation blood flow therapy group, or (ii) a placebo group. The primary outcome measure was the change in peripheral arterial tonometry index between baseline and after treatment. Secondary outcome measures included the effect of treatment on function, including the ability to stand up unassisted and the Barthel Index. Although there was a statistically significant increase in peripheral arterial tonometry index in both groups after treatment, the median change for the microcirculation blood flow therapy group was 2.0 units compared with -0.5 units for the placebo group. There was also a greater clinical improvement in the microcirculation blood flow therapy group (mean Barthel Index of 42 [95% confidence interval 43-41]) compared with the placebo group (mean Barthel Index of 41 [95% confidence interval 41-41]). High-dose microcirculation blood flow therapy was associated with improvements in endothelial function and functional capacity in stroke survivors. These results support the notion that vascular function may 570a42141b
