If the left child was drawn in front of the right child then I'd like to have the right child drawn in front. I've tried calling the InvalidateLayer() method on the controls that draw in front but the blue and red still draw in front of each other. How can I maintain the order between the two children (drawing left one behind the other)? A: To maintain the order you would need to assign the Background="Transparent" property to the control which has the red gradient. with a significant stroke. The hypothesis
