The annual event – The King and Queen of Denmark Royal Dinner Auction – was held at a castle in the country on Thursday night. It was a huge event organised by the Royal Institute and a charity for youngsters with special needs called BiT. The annual auction saw hopeful buyers bid for the title of king or queen of the Danish Kingdom. Among those who competed were a model, a footballer and an engineer. They had the chance to win up to 100,000 Danish crowns (£13,000/$18,000) for the title, but also a night of fun at the annual award dinner held by the Royal Institute. Carl Petersen, who is organising the event, said: “The King and Queen of Denmark Royal Dinner Auction has always been a fun evening of bids and laughter. “This year’s extra-special event raised more than €16,000 for BiT, a Danish foundation which helps children with autism. “The money will help the charity maintain its programmes which meet the needs of 2,000 autistic children and their families every year,” he added.[Indoor air pollution from burning polyethylene resin wastes and the health of children with IgA deficiency]. Children with IgA deficiency are at increased risk of allergic respiratory diseases. It was suggested that a relationship between air pollution and atopy may exist. In this study we studied the association between air pollution from burning polyethylene resin wastes (PWRs) and the health of children with IgA deficiency (IgAD). A questionnaire was sent to parents of
