Please look at the time stamp on the story to see when it was last updated. Lebanon officials said that a male inmate was arrested Monday morning after he used a fake passport to enter the Lebanon Correctional Institution. The officials said the inmate was stopped at the facility's front gate. The prisoner told the officers he did not have any identification on him. When they asked the inmate where he was coming from, the prisoner replied that he was coming from Newport. The inmate also told the officers that he was from that city. The prisoner provided no other information and the officers conducted a search on the inmate. During the search the officers found the fake passport inside the inmate's cell. The passport said the inmate's name was "Reynolds Lawrence Ames." Officials said the inmate admitted that he had purchased the passport from a supplier in North Carolina.
